Subject: working remotely

Hi Michelle.

I am a remote worker. I live on Cape Cod, but the Partners research office is located in Somerville, almost 70 miles away from me. Our company advocates working remotely. As a remote worker, we are required to have a computer, printer, scanner and phone. We have full access to our systems in Somerville.

We have daily reports run from a software called Microstrategies. We also use Skype for business. These help up manage our workload and Skype knows when we are active, to a point. We don't have to report in with daily workloads, because it's pretty transparent.

The biggest thing is trust. We are all very professional & accountable. We are pretty independent, too.

We do go inot the office every other week for meetings. Sometimes I am in a few days a week, and sometimes I can go for 8-10 weeks without going in at all.

It saves on gas and travel/commute, but I think all of us remote people like seeing our colleauges from time to time.

I am on Cape Cod, we have people in my office who live in Texas, FLorida, Vermont, Maui, London.

Imagine working in remote VT on a Boston Salary? 😊
